PROCEEDS ON HER JOURNEY

Jar is So Slight That Many Passengers are Unaware of the Accident; Glancing Blow Abaft the Bow is the Only Damage Inflicted on Steamship

By Associated Press.

ON BOARD S. S. NEW YORK, via wireless via Siasconsett, Mass., June 13.—The Hamburg American liner Pretoria, New York for Hamburg, collided with the American liner New York during a dense fog at 2.36 o'clock this morning. Fortunately the blow was a glancing one, just abaft of the bow, and the New York was uninjured.

No panic or undue excitement prevailed aboard the New York, as the shock was so slight that many of the passengers were not even awakened.

Because of the fog the New York was stopped at the time of the accident. Later she proceeded on her voyage to New York.

NONE INJURED, CAPTAIN'S WORD FROM OCEANLINER.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The American Line received only a brief wireless message from Captain Roberts of the New York concerning the collision with the Pretoria. The message said.

"Pretoria collided New York. None injured Damage slight. Fog. Roberts."

Up to 9 o'clock this morning the Hamburg American Line had received no word from the captain of the Pretoria

COLONEL IN LONDON

By Associated Press.

LONDON, June 13.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt arrived in London today from the Continent, accompanied by Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Philip J. Roosevelt, his cousin. Ambassador Walter H. Page was waiting at the station to meet the former President.

One of the first to welcome Colonel Roosevelt was the Archbishop of Canterbury, who traveled on the same train and who greeted him on the platform. After being the guest at luncheon of Ambassador Page, Colonel Roosevelt was taken in a motor car to Chequers Court, the residence of Lieutenant Colonel Lee, where he will spend the week-end.

It is possible that Colonel Roosevelt may see King George before leaving London. His majesty is spending a week at Windsor Castle, but no arrangements have been made for a meeting.

ITALIAN STRIKE SPREADS

Railway Employes are Out in Many Provinces.

By Associated Press.

ROME, June 13.—Detachments of troops were ordered today to take control of the railroad station and tracks in Rome. This action was in consequence of threats of the employes to begin a general railroad strike.

No decision was taken at the meeting of the railroad men held early today to discuss the proposed strike. The more moderate faction of the workmen, which regards such an action as inopportune, succeeded in obtaining an adjournment of the discussion until later in the day.

Reports from the provinces, however, indicate that the cessation of work is general in some districts

CORONER'S JURY PLACES MURDER BLAME ON CRAMER

Special to The Courier.

SOMERSET, June 13.—A coroner's jury last night placed responsibility for the killing of William Trimpey upon Henry Cramer, the blacksmith now in the Somerset county jail charged with the crime. Several witnesses were examined and the evidence indicated that Cramer had done the shooting. Cramer does not appear to be worried. He denies that he had anything to do with the muder.

The principal witness against Cramer was Lola Trimpey, 14 year old daughter of the murdered man. She declares that she saw him slinking through the bushes toward his corn patch, a short time after the shooting. The girl and her mother ran to Trimpey's side when they heard the shot and his screams. She declared that her father, after regaining consciousness, told her Cramer shot him. Trimpey, she declared, was unarmed,

Dwight Shelley, who drove a horse for Cramer while working the corn, said that on Wednesday Cramer told him not to come to work until 10 o'clock. The blacksmith, Shelley declared, said he would do the work himself up to that time. He said that Cramer did not go up the road when Trimpey's body was carried home. Several other witnesses were examined

GOETHALS TO INVESTIGATE

McClintic-Marshall Claim Gets Action in House.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Colonel George W. Goethals, Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, last night was authorized by the House to investigate the claim of the McClintic-Marshall Company of Pittsburg, relative to extra work it was compelled to do in connection with its contract for lock gates for the Panama Canal.

The company claims it expended $2,394,490 over and above what would have been necessary had the work been conducted under fair conditions and inspections. The rigid requirements of the government inspectors, it is claimed, put the company to the additional expense. The bill recently passed the Senate. The House made a few amendments to th Senate bill, which the latter body is expected to agree to.

SUFFRAGE ENDORSED.

No Opposition Among Women's Clubs, Says Leader.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Grace Wilbur Trout, one of the leaders in the woman's suffrage campaign before the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, said this morning that there would be practically no opposition to endorsement of the principle of woman's suffrage.

She said, however, no attempt would be made to have the federation adopt suffrage as a part of its propaganda.

AID IS EXTENDED VICTIMS OF THE URSINA CYCLONE

Relief Committee Acknowledges the Receipt of $84.50.

ENCOURAGED AT THE RESPONSE

The Ursina Cyclone Relief Committee has acknowledged to The Courier the receipt of $82.50 towards the assistance of the victims of the cyclone which swept the Somerset county village more than a week ago. In sending the acknowledgement, W. J. B. Bonford, secretary and treasurer of the relief committee, expresses hearty gratification over the response made to the appeal sent out in behalf of the victims.

Of the two persons seriously injured, J. L. Biddle is still in a serious condition and considerable anxiety is felt over him. His ultimate recovery is by no means assured. Mrs. Sarah Cameron, who was also badly hurt, continues to improve and will likely recover.

The committee states that as the general appeal for aid was not made until June 8, the response to date is all that could be expected. That there will be other generous contributions is not doubted. Quite a number of donations have been made by societies and other organizations that have not yet reached hte committee. The list of contributions to date follows:

H. L. Hostetler, Confluence	$10.00
W. J. Sleed, Confluence	1.00
S. A. Leichliter, Elk Lick	5.00

JOHN IRWIN NAMED

Succeeds J. M. Murtland as Deputy Revenue Collector.

John Irwin of Connellsville was today appointed Deputy Revenue Collector for the Fayette-Somerset district, succeeding James M. Murtland The appointment becomes effective on or about July 1. The appointment of Mr. Irwin will bring the office to Connellsville, where headquarters have been fixed up in the Federal building since its opening. Mr. Murtland had his office in Dawson.

Mr. Irwin is a well known Democrat. He has been connected with the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for a number of years. His appointment will be for four years at a salary of $1,800 a year, out of which he must pay his own expenses.

The duties of the office are the collection of taxes on all products which come under the internal revenue acts. R. K. Long who was recently named pipe line inspector at the Yough brewery will be connected with Mr. Irwin's office.

BID IS TOO LOW

A bid of $350,000 by W. A. Stone of Uniontown was not considered sufficient when the Cyrilla No. 5 plant of the Sunshine Coal & Coke Company was offered at public sale yesterday, so the sale was again postponed until June 26.

The sale was begun at 1 o'clock and the bidding started at $250,000. The Francis No. 1 plant of the Sunshine company will be offered at public sale at the plant at Martin at 2 o'clock this afternoon. In addition to the mining equipment, the plant includes 240 beehive ovens, 120 acres of Pittsburg coal, 330 acres Sewickley coal, 475 acres of surface, 12 houses, storeroom and other buildings.

MUST NOT USE TRACKS.

Pennsy Detectives Warn Factory Employes at Mount Pleasant.

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, May 13.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company sent an officer here yesterday and notified the Pittsburg Brewing Company and the Bryce Brothers' glass factory that their employes must not walk along the tracks of the railroad or trespass on their property or they would be subject to arrest.

This goes into effect on Monday morning. Notices have also been posted on the grounds. This has been a short way for these men to go to work and has been used by them for years.

TOO FOND OF SUITCASES.

Lee's Wistful Gaze Causes His Arrest, It is Said.

Lee had been longingly gazing at a couple of suitcases that were in the waiting room for almost twenty minutes and Officer Detemple decided that it was best to arrest him before he could commit the theft.

NO WORK, NO PAY, SAYS GANS OF BRYNER'S BILL

Superintendent of Accounts Declines to Approve Sealer's Salary for Month's Idleness.

Workmen are engaged at the city hall setting up some of the equipment for the office of Sealer of Weights and Measures J. S. Bryner. Bills for some of the apparatus have been received, indicating that it is on the way, but it has not been received as yet. As soon as they are ready, Mr. Bryner will begin work.

The question of when the new official takes office is likely to be brought to a head soon; or rather, the controversy will simmer down to when his salary begins. Mr. Bryner had already put in a bill for a month's services, but it has not been approved by Superintendent of Accounts and Finance John L. Gans. Mr. Bryner contends that he was apointed by Mayor Marietta in April and says it is not his fault that he has been unable to do any actual work because of lack of apparatus. He reports at city hall every morning, but doesn't do anything.

Councilman Gans claims that Mr. Bryner's appointment dates from the time he actually starts to work, and that his salary will begin at that time. At first council put up a fight against aproving the mayor's appointment and he was requested to see if the office of county sealer and city sealer could not be combined in the county official. Later when the budget was made up, and appropriation for the conduct of the city sealer's office was included and steps were taken to provide apparatus.

Mr. Bryner's appointment was made under a separate act of assembly, which makes it compulsory for third-class cities to appoint such an official at a salary of not less than $1,000 a year.

WATER COMPANY IS LOSING MONEY WITH METERS, IS CLAIM

Superintendent Little Submits Figures to Back Up Statements.

BUT THE PROTESTS CONTINUE

South Side Woman Has a Shotgun Ready for the Meter Men if They Come to Her Home; Pumping Station is Out for Some Hours.

Declaring that his company will undoubtedly lose revenue by the metering of residences, Superintendent R. V. Little of the Connellsville Water Company today prints a statement in another column containing comparisons of rates of 96 residents under meters with what they paid under the old flat rates. In only four instances, he points out, was the rate higher than under the flat rate system and in these the increase was due to increased consumption due to unusual conditions.

"The statement we print today," said Mr. Little, "is our principal argument. It shows without doubt that the meter rates are not higher than the old ones The average in these 96 cases was $1.23 a month, and I know of no more convincing proof of the advantage of the meter system.

"I wish you would state," continued Mr. Little, "that there is a false impression prevalent regarding a rental for the use of meters. There is absolutely no rental of this kind. The fact that we have a minimum of $1 a month or $3 a quarter wherever water connections are made, has caused this to be confused with a meter rental."

"Sentiment is by no means entirely against us," he added. "Only yesterday we had several voluntary requests to have meters installed from residents who had not received notices. This shows that economical people realize that the meter will result in a saving to them. A great many people are suspicious of the water company, believing that it will derive great financial gain from the meters. As a matter of fact, we lose out in revenue on every one installed We knew that before we started Our saving will be in the amount of water pumped."

Mr. Little further emphasized the invitation to consumers to examine the accounts of those included in the printed list, at the company's office to see that they are absolutely correct.

During the night the pumping sation was shut down for several hours to make some new pipe connections and water was supplied from the reservoirs. The pmups were again at work this moning.

Meanwhile the storm of protest against the installation of meters continues. One woman on the South Side declared today that she had a double-barreled shotgun loaded in readiness for anybody who tries to force his way into her residence to install a water meter. Other residents are objecting strenuously to the installation and most of them are coming ou ictorious in their tilts with the company's workmen.

FINE BAND CONCERT

Tenth Regiment Musicians Inaugurate Their Open-Air Season.

The Tenth Regiment Band's initial open-air concert of the 1914 season was heard by a large crowd last night. The numbers were all enjoyable but those who wanted to listen were annoyed by the large number of children who romped about in the vicinity.

The soloists, Miss Helen Bell Rush of Dawson and John Davis, both acquitted themselves well. Miss Rush san "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and "All Aobard for Dixie," and Mr. Davis rendered "On the Way to Mandalay," all of which were enthusiastically encored.

It was the first appearance of Miss Rush at an open air concert but she sang splendidly. She was repeatedly encored.

REAL BEAU BRUMMEL

Negro is Charged With Theft of Manicure Set.

Alonzo Munson, colored, was arrested this morning by Chief of Police W. B. Bowers on a charge of larceny made by Mrs. Fannie Beck, who lives on the West Side. Alonzo was passing the window and pushing back the curtain, took a manicuring set, it was charged. It is also said that he took a locket and a watch He was seen taking the articles by the lady and she watched him him until an officer could be called.

When searched at the police station the locket and watch were missing but he had the set in his pocket. A warrant for his arrest was made out before Alderman Munk.

Look Like Each Other.

FLAG DAY – ON TOP.

J. H. S. STIMMELL TO BE BURIED THIS AFTERNOON

Services Will be Held in Trinity Lutheran Church; Friends View Body.

The funeral of J. H. S. Stimmell, secretary and treasurer of The Courier Company, will be held at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon from the Trinity Lutheran Church. Rev. Ellis B. Burgess will preach the sermon, assisted by Rev. J. L. Proudfit. Interment will be made in Hill Grove cemetery.

The body, which was brought from Confluence yesterday morning, was viewew by scores of Mr. Stimmell's friends at the home of H. P. Snyder last evening and today. It will be taken into the church at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The pallbearers will be employes of The Courier. Those selected were Charles B. McCormick, Robert W. Leiberger, George S. Connell, A. C. Herbert, David S. Trimble, James McPartland, Ralph Sliger and Frank Trump.

Several friends from Greensburg came over yesterday and a large delegation from Westmoreland county will attend the funeral this afternoon. Among those here for the funeral are Mr and Mrs. J. W. Elder and Mr. and Mrs Jacob Stimmell. Mr Elder, assistant superintendent of delivery in the Pittsburg postoffice, and Mr. Stimmell are nephews of the deceased. Three nieces, Mrs. Sarah Griffith and Misses Sophie and Margaret Elder, who made their home here with Mr. Stimmell some years ago, are in Los Angeles and will not be able to attend.

EXPECT BIG CROWDS

Brownsville Sunday School Convention Likely to Break Records.

The Fayette county Sunday school convention will open Monday afternoon at 2 30 o'clock for three sessions, in the Central Presbyterian Church at Brownsville with a conference for all county and district officers. There are about 250 in the county. About 100 different speakers will participate in the convention program.

All indications point to a record breaking attendance throughout all of the sessions. The parade on Wednesday evening, in which men, boys and girls of the adult and secondary divisions will participate, promises to be a record breaker.

The schedule for the special trains to be run Wednesday evening to and from Brownsville is as follows

Special will leave Connellsville at 6 P. M.; West Side, Connellsville 6.04; Dunbar, 6.11; Mount Braddock, 6.16; Lemont, 6.23; Redstone Junction, 6.33; Thaw, 6.45; Vances Mill, 6.50; Upper Middletown, 6.56; Waltersburg, 7.02; Smock, 7.07; Tippecanoe, 7.12; Grindstone, 7.17; Braznell, 7.22, arriving at Brownsville at 7.35.

CITY SHOULD TAKE IT UP

Citizen Suggests that Department of Parks is Not Overworked and Intimates that Council Might Give Its Assistance; New Plea for Funds.

Although the open air band concerts are probably the most popular institution in Connellsville, every one is being marred by the utter absence of any police protection. Spectators who go to the high school grounds to hear good music are becoming peevish. Every vocal-solo that has been rendered from the band stand has been spoiled by the prattle and chatter or romping youngsters, who never frolic during the intermissions, but keep on the jump the minute the band bgins to play.

The suggestion was made by several citizens that the band stand should be taken over by the city and regulated by the superintendent of parks and public property. Councilman Duggan has charge of that department. and it is probable that if the suggestion was put up to him he would give it hearty encouragement Although busy with the water question, the department of parks and public property isn't otherwise overworked.

The absence of police protection has long caused comment. One man called attention to the fact that while the baseball season was on one or two policemen were always detailed to Fayette Field. Not a one gets up to the band concert, although the attendance outnumbers ball games two or three to one.

The principal annoyance comes from children romping about the school grounds. One policeman might find his hands full keeping several hundred youngsters quiet, but his presence would have considerable effect. Another suggestion that has been made is that Secretary E. T. Baer of the Y. M. C. A. might detail his Boy Scouts to patrol the school and library grounds to keep the children from breaking up the concerts.

The band stand is in sad need of repair The job would cost about $50 and $14 has already been subscribed. A. M Haines of the Connellsville Construction Company has volunteered to act as treasurer of the fund, and he suggested today that donations might be left either with him or at E. J. Enos' cigar store on Pittsburg street, or E. C. Thomas' store on Main street. The stand needs painting and repairing. Two sections of the balustrade around it have been torn away and other damage done.

There has been considerable criticism directed toward the school authorities, because most of the damage to the stand, it is declared, was done during the recess hours.

The band concerts are popular, but there is need of regulation, according to spectators who attend regularly. Considerable annoyance is caused by automobiles. The drivers sometimes are in a hurry to get away and start their machines chugging before the final number has been completed. Efforts will be made, it is said, to have police protection. It is intimated that an ordinance may be urged upon council regulating conduct of persons and owners of vehicles at the concerts.

ACCUSED OF THEFT

Reidmore Man Declares Prisoner Stole Gun and Intended to Use tI.

There was considerable excitement in the vicinity of Reidmore last night and as a result Clarence Woods, colored, is in the lockup awaiting a hearing on charge of stealing a shotgun and threatening to use it on its owner Silas Woodruff.

Constable Samuel Ritenour of South Connellsville arrested Woods at the Samuels residence, a short distance away, about 1.30 o'clock this morning. Earlier in the night he had been out to the Woodruff place where the trouble was brewing. He pacified the combatants and returned home. Later Woodruff appeared and swore out a warrant for Woods, declaring that he had stolen a gun and threatened to kill him with it. It is alleged that Woods fired a shot or two. The hearing is scheduled for 1 o'clock this afternoon before Squire W. F. Edenbo of South Connellsville.

WILL LAY CORNERSTONE.

Impressive Ceremonies to Mark Anniversary of Methodism.

The laying of the cornerstone of the new Methodist Episcopal Church in Uniontown will take place tomorrow afternoon. Rev Dr. S. R. Ross of McKeesport, superintendent of the McKeesport district, will have charge of the services beginning at 3 o'clock.

Fined for Fighting.

Abraham Santor and D. Esse of the West Side, who figured in a suit in Alderman Munk's office yesterday morning were fined $5 each by Mayor Marietta last night for fighting on the streets Thursday night.

SOCIETY.

Wright-Metzler Employes Picnic.

The annual outing of the employes of the Wright-Metzler Company, held yesterday afternoon and evening at Shady Grove Park was a grand success, and was pronounced by all as the best ever. The store was closed promptly at 3 o'clock and at 3.30 o'clock the picnickers left for the park on a special street car, arriving at the park shortly after 4 o'clock. Although it was not the largest crowd ever at the park, it was the jolliest one. Everybody had a good time. The weather could not have been more ideal had it been ordered, and the committees in charge saw that not the smallest details were overlooked in looking after the success of the outing. One hundred and twenty-five persons, including members of the company, the employes and their friends attended.

The park was turned over to the picnickers by Manager R. S. Coyle and there was nothing too good for the crowd. A new feature in the amusement line this year was the athletic program which provided great amusement, especially for the spectators. The races took place soon after the arrival at the park.

There were many entrances and the races were closely contested. The prizes were awarded as follows: Three legged race for men, prize a mission and leather footstool, R. M. Evans; ladies, prize, black silk sash, Miss Elizabeth Smith, ball throwing contest, men's prize, silk cap, Percy Sheetz, ladies, prize, pair silk hose, Miss Rottler, running broad jump for men, prize, fancy basket, Tony Renox; fifty-yard dash race for women, prize, fancy collar, Miss Elsie Williams; 100-yard dash for men, first prize, pair of tennis shoes, Dana Wright, second prize, two neckties, Percy Sheetz; egg race for women, first prize, fancy camisole, Miss Sue Bush, second prize, cut glass dish, Miss Rottler; sack race for men, prize, large bottle olives, Dana Wright.

Following the races, a ball game between R. M. Evans' men and E. C. Moore's men was the attraction. It was some ball game, Evans' men winning by a score of 9-8. The batteries of Moore's team were Moore and Sheetz and for Evans' Wright, Evans and Renox. A home run by Renox was a feature of the game. S. W. Metzler of the Uniontown store participated and was one of the star players.

The next and greatest attraction was the supper served from one long table arranged in one of the prettiest and coolest spots of the park. The large table laden with all the [illegible] delicacies of the season, as well as more substantial edibles, and the attractive decorations, presented a very pretty scene. A color scheme of white and green was artistically carried out. Large bouquets of roses were placed on the table at intervals which baskets of fruit lined w[illegible] and added [illegible] to the effect. There was enough to feed [illegible] and the young ladies in charge saw that none left the table hungry. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and in taking in the park amusements. Those who did not dance enjoyed rides on the merry-go-round and the roller coaster. [illegible] W. L. [illegible] of the athletic [illegible] [illegible] persons remained for [illegible]

Afternoon at Bridge Whist.

Endeavorers Elect Officers.

The following officers for the ensuing year were chosen at the closing session yesterday of the twenty-first annual convention of the Christian Endeavor Society of Fayette County held at Masontown: Counselor, Rev. C. R. Harmon of Brownsville; president, G. W. Greenwood, first vice president, Floyd R. Searcy, Uniontown; second vice president, C. W. Winey, Connellsville; third vice president, Prof. D. D. Watkins, Brownsville; recording secretary, Miss Emma Knotts, Masontown; corresponding secretary, J. Watson Semhower, Uniontown and treasurer Earl S. Ansford, Uniontown. Mrs. Rev. Nellie H. Showman of Connellsville delivered an address on "Christian Endeavor Efficiency."

Will Choose Delegate.

Following the services at the Methodist Protestant church tomorrow morning a delegate to the annual meeting of the Pittsburg Conference to be held in September at Castle Shannon will be elected, and the pastor, Rev. R. E. Cairns, will be extended a call.

Afternoon Card Club Meets.

Mrs. Joseph T. Johnston was hostess at the regular meeting of the Thursday Afternoon Card Club yesterday afternoon at her home in East Main street. There were three tables in play and only members of the club were present. Prizes were awarded Mrs. Herbert Knox, Mrs. R. K. Long and Miss Myrtle Bailey. Luncheon was served. Mrs. Edna Johnston Frontel will entertain the club next Thursday afternoon at the Colonial Inn.

Will Hold Convention.

The annual convention of the Brethren churches, Christian Endeavor Societies and Sunday schools of the Pennsylvania district will be held June 16 and 17 at Berlin.

THINGS THAT COUNT.

The Best Index to a Man's Character and Standing.

Hands that work, a mind that thinks and a heart that makes the welfare of his family the first consideration—these are the things that make a man worth while. The man that works earns money; the man that thinks saves it and the man who loves his family will not be a spendthrift. His bank book is, therefore, the best index to a man's character—the truest indication of his real regard for his family—the best recommendation he can offer his employer. Think this over, young man. If it leads you to be a worth while man—to save something regularly—the First National Bank cordially invites your savings account and will pay you 4% compound interest.—Adv.

Adopt Parsonage Plans.

The board of trustees of the First United Presbyterian Church met last evening at the home of Kell Long on First street, West Side, and adopted plans for the erection of the new parsonage in the rear of the church in South Pittsburg street. Two sets of plans were adopted and the session lasted for several hours. Bids for a ten room and eight room house, will be received from the contractors.

CAN YOU DOUBT IT?

When the Proof Can Be So Easily Investigated.

When so many grateful citizens of Connellsville testify to benefit derived from Doan's Kidney Pills, can you doubt the evidence? The proof is not far away. It is almost at your door. Read what a resident of Connellsville says about Doan's Kidney Pills. Can you demand more convincing testimony?

Harry J. Lewellen, machinist, 520 Johnston avenue, Connellsville, Pa., says: "For about two years I had a lot of trouble from my kidneys. Every time I stooped at my work, I could hardly get up again, owing to sharp pains that shot through my back. I got dizzy and often everything became black in front of me. The kidney secretions pained in passage and I had to get up several times during the night. I heard a lot about Doan's Kidney Pills and how they had cured some of my friends and I got a box. I didn't use all of them before I was all right. I haven't had any kidney trouble since."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Lewellen had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

MARRIED MEN WIN.

Single Blessedness Does Not Produce Good Baseball Players at Morgan.

The supremacy of married men over their single brethren was demonstrated once more at Morgan in a game of ball Thursday night when a team composed of the former won out by a score of 16 to 14.

The features of the game were the hitting and base running of H. Kling, a former Frick league star, the batting of H. Habor, and the pitching of Yanle who had twelve strikeouts.

Surprised on Birthday.

The News of Nearby Towns.

CONFLUENCE.

The town was shocked Thursday at 6:30 when J. H. S. Stimmell, secretary and treasurer of the Connellsville Courier Company, who was a guest of Charles Russell, suddenly expired, death being caused by heart failure while eating his supper. Mr. Stimmell not feeling well lately decided to come to Confluence several days ago and recuperate at Mr. Russell's hotel being an old friend of Mr. Russell. Mr. Stimmell during his short stay here by his gentlemanly ways and pleasing personality, had made many friends who feel sorry and sympathy with his friends and business associates.

J. J. Driscoll, circulation manager of the Connellsville Courier, accompanied by Undertaker Charles Mitchell, came here yesterday and took charge of the body.

CAR SHORTAGE FEARED

Big Demand Expected When Crops Begin to Move.

Although the report of the American Railway Association showing the surplus and shortage of freight cars June 1 indicates the largest surplus since middle of 1909, the net surplus being 241,802, the most acute shortage of cars experienced in many years is expects by railroad experts within 60 days. Western railroads are facing the problem of moving one of the largest crops ever harvested in this country, and it is estimated this will make more than 1,000,000 carloads. Railroads from the Mississippi west own about 785,000 cars, of which about 50 per cent are box cars and other types that can be used for moving grain.

Co-operation is being urged by railroads who say the situation can be handled if farmers will not attempt to ship their grain as fast as harvested, to give the railroads opportunity to transport as fast as rolling stock will permit and as fast as terminal facilities can handle it.

Another feature of the situation which is being considered is the fact that railroads have not kept their rolling stock repaired to the degree that usually obtains, and a considerable portion of the idle cars is not in condition for use to assist in the grain movement.

Although the surplus of cars resulting from stagnation of general business has gone to a point not equalled for five years, it is believed this will be nearly swept away when the demand fo grain cars reaches its height.

COAL TRADE IMPROVES

The bituminous coal market in Western Pennsylvania is looking up a trifle, reports the Pittsburg correspondent of the Cleveland Iron Trade. Mines are operating more nearly at normal capacity for this time of the year, and it is probable, say operators, that conditions will continue to improve moderately for several weeks. Demand for shipment up the lakes, although not so heavy as a year ago, is better than generally expected, and the general line trade has reflected a better tone lately. Heavy consumers are cleaning up stocks accumulated early in the year, when it was believed mines would close down April 1, pending the settlement of the wage question.

Slack continues to show irregularity. Early in the year, slack was commanding as high as 90 cents and even $1.10 a ton. Reports of sales as low as 55 cents a ton are heard. Mine run is selling at about $1.25 a ton. Some dealers are asking more; others are shading that figure. One and one-quarter inch is nominally listed at $1.55 a ton at the mine in this district.

PIPE ORDERS RECEIVED.

Pittsburg Companies Awarded Contracts for 40 Miles of Line.

Orders for more than 40 miles of steel pipe line were placed with independent steel mills in Pittsburg this week by oil companies, for use in building pipe lines in West Virginia. The orders came in two lots. One called for a line of 25 miles, of 16-inch pipe for delivery in West Virginia, and which went to an independent pipe concern, and the second, calling or 15 miles of the same size pipe, was awarded to another independent maker.

From California, there has come an inquiry for a total of 127 miles.

THE ARCADE.

LAST HALF GIRLIE SHOW.

Luther & Gates present a change for the last half this week with their musical comedy company composed of seven girls and three men which is a much livlier attraction than the first half. The comedy is entitled "A One Night Stand." The title means nothing as there but little plot developed, but is full of ginger and a mixture of comedy, singing numbers and dancing. The girls are good looking and have many changes of wardrobe, and as a whole the show goes better than the first half. Next week brings the famous Beauty Mark Musical Comedy Company of ten people and it is reported to be a big winner. The new feature pictures are liked as presented daily at the Arcade.

Mrs. I. Hall of Whig Corner spent yesterday shopping and calling on Ohiopyle friends.

RICE BARRIER WORKS

Stands Rigid Test in Checking Flames in Experimental Mine.

The new Rice rock dust barrier was given a tryout this week in the presence of more than 100 members of the Mine Inspectors' Institute of the United States who made the trip from Pittsburg to the experimental mine of the Bureau of Mines at Bruceton to observe the demonstration. The visiting inspectors declared the test to have been highly successful.

A carefully planned explosion was arranged at the mine, the purpose being to determine the efficiency of various forms of rock dust barriers in stopping the propogation of deadly gases. A cannon loaded with four pounds of black powder was placed on a stub of the 1,250-foot cut-through. At the stub 25 pounds of fine coal dust was sprinkled on the floor and 100 pounds placed on the shelves. From this point to the 700-foot mark coal dust to the extent of two pounds to the foot was mixed with shale dust. The Rice barrier was then placed, containing two and a half tons of shale dust. The barrier itself was of concrete.

When the explosion took place the flames failed to pass the barrier, being smothered by the rock dust. Cotton fixed on hooks immediately back of the barrier escaped singeing, although an 800-foot to the minute air current was behind the explosion.

Statement by the Connellsville Water Company

In order to give our consumers some additional information in connection with the sale of water by meter, we have made up the following list of all metered residence accounts on the books of the company for the year 1913 and we have shown in this list the average amount of water used by each of these consumers per month, the average monthly bill, the amount of their bill had they remained on the flat or annual rate basis, and the amount each consumer has saved per month by purchasing their supply by meter. These figures are for the entire year of 1913.

The names of the consumers have been omitted, but each account is identified by the meter book number and we will be pleased to give you the name or names of these consumers if you will call at the office of the company, or on the telephone. We have a similar list in the office on which the names have been written.

You will note from the above list that there are 96 accounts of which, four of them only, show that the consumer has paid more for his water supply by meter measurement than he would have paid on the flat rate basis; on the other hand, the statement shows that 92 of the consumers paid less for their water supply by meter measurement than they would have paid by the flat or annual rates.

The average amount paid by those accounts on the listwas $1.23 per month, and we know of no more conclusive argument in favor of the meter system than the evidence produced by the above.

Another thing that we desire to call your attention to is the fact, that with several exceptions, all of the above consumers purchased and installed meters at their own expense, and in addition they pay for the upkeep and repairs of their meters.

We request that everyone who is interested in the matter, and especially the Newspapers, Chamber of Commerce and other bodies call at our office and look over our office list, and if they so desire we will refer them to the accounts on the books. We are making this statement in good faith and it will give us pleasure to give our consumers all the facts bearing on the matter.

The Water Company will make no charge whatever for the meters it will set, neither will it charge the consumer any rental for them. The MINIMUM charge of $1.00 per month or $3.00 per quarter, which it makes for residence meters will allow the consumer its equivalent value in water; this allowance for the minimum payments amounts to 123 gallons per day, or 3,700 gallons per month.

We regret that so much has been said recently to confuse our consumers on the meter question, and we hope that the above statement will serve to give you a clearer idea as to what can be expected of the meter system.

SATURDAY EVE'G, JUNE 13, 1914.

LOSE NOT A TRICK.

There seems to be some doubt in the public mind as to the intentions of the council in the matter of its legal proceedings against the water company.

There should be none.

As a plain business proposition, we take it that the city of Connellsville does not want to invest a large sum of money in a water plant if it can secure water service at reasonable rates, that is to say at rates that would be as cheap as water could be furnished by a municipally-owned plant, interest on the investment and depreciation charges considered.

It should be the first effort of the council to secure such a rate by application to the Public Service Commission, and, in doing so, it ought to ask that the present effort to advance existing rates through compulsory meter service be suspended pending the hearing and determination of the rate question as a whole.

Failing in an effort to secure reasonable water rates, the proceedings for condemnation should be pressed.

It is possible that the award of such condemnation might be unsatisfactory to the city, and it might be necessary to consider the advisability of constructing a new system. This contingency is of course remote, but it is not wholly removed.

There has been a great deal of talk on the water question, but no action. We hope the council will proceed in order, perform with thoroughness and "lose not a single trick."

NATURE VS. DEMOCRACY.

The New Freedom News Standard quotes the Boston Copper News on the financial and industrial outlook. The Copper News thinks the Wilson Tariff is destined to bring about "the greatest period of prosperity we have had since the Civil War." The Copper News is a Free Trade organ. Its view of the situation doesn't comport with conditions in the Connellsville coke region. Under the circumstances people here will have to be shown. Psychological prosperity doesn't pay grocery bills.

It is worthy of note, however, that The Copper News concludes with the statement that "the greatest crop in history is in sight." That, of course, makes a [illegible] of difference. It's the [illegible] fool Democratic notions [illegible] not been able to damage or [illegible]. Since quotations from eastern publications are in order, we may be pardoned for quoting the New York Sun on the situation. It says:

"The Hon. William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce, traveling Prosperity Talker and assistant professor of Psychological Conditions, bid the [illegible] look upon this picture and be glad:

"[illegible] far off California and from Florida, from the fields of Oklahoma and Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska, come the glad cry of a harvest all but ripe for the sickle. There was no [illegible] in the orange groves of California when I saw them in March, and Florida attests no cry of distress in sending 21000 car loads of her fruit to market."

What a bitter and true reviling of the Department of Psychology at Washington, what a cruel "if unconscious" dig at the Professor! No pragmatical meddling [illegible], no mountebanks of the new freedom, no Malvolios and Dogberries of regulation and suppression have been able to tamper with the bowels and fruits of the earth. There is no fountain of wealth that all those Indian hands have not stopped up. There is no Interstate Weather Commission. The farmers are a beloved and favored class which the Administration and Congress—the phrase is tautological—won't hurt if they can help it, against which the statute book doesn't bristle and snarl.

In the only prosperity visible the Democrats have had no hand. Business, subject to legislation and regulation, has wilted or still trembles under the blighting official touch. The prosperity is of God. The adversity comes from Democratic stupidity, fanaticism and "idealism."

THE CANAL TOLLS BILL.

The passage of the Panama Canal tolls bill by a substantial majority is a victory for President Wilson over the Baltimore Platform. It is also a victory for that larger statesmanship which declared for a broad interpretation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

The demand for free tolls for coastwise shipping is not only a discrimination against other nations, but it is a discrimination against one American interest and in favor of another. The argument that "American money built this canal, therefore American ships should go through free," has an American sound, but it is all sound. Coastwise shipping pays a small share of the cost of the canal; the bulk of it is paid by inland interests which will reap no particular benefit from the favoritism shown coastwise shipping.

The Panama Canal toll question is in no sense a political question and does not seem to have been so regarded by many of the Senators who voted on the bill. In this matter President Wilson has been greater and better than his party.

The labor unions are applying the recall to Judge Dayton of West Virginia, and they may get him, not for his labor union decisions, but for his alleged judicial nepotism. Modern judges are not as careful in this respect as were the judges of the old school.

HOPE IN THE CROPS.

Under the caption of, "Looking forward to next month," the Cleveland Daily Iron Trade presents the following speculatively hopeful view of the coke and iron situation:

"While caution has been for weeks the trading characteristic of all branches of the iron and steel market, extreme caution now distinguishes the pig iron market and its attendants, the Connellsville coke market and the Lake Superior ore market. True, some ore is being contracted for by furnaces this week in something like fair tonnages, although in a normal season these tonnages would make small picking. It is apparent some furnacemen now figure that they will need additional ore shortly if they are to keep their stacks in blast, and they are making provision as well for the fall and early winter in their purchases of this week.

"The Connellsville coke market is keeping itself pretty well in hand. While several grades of spot furnace coke can be had around $1.75, ovens, yet it is generally conceded the usual marketable furnace brands are bringing 10 cents a ton higher for the comparatively small tonnages that are being negotiated at this time. It seems to be clear furnaces are not anxious to contract for the next six months; and it is equally clear coke producers are not any more anxious to sell for that period. The immediate future is so uncertain that neither wants to take a chance, and it is entirely likely the present hand-to-mouth buying will continue for some months at least. Yesterday we published in this column the news of a staff representative as to the southern coke market, and those views differed little from those generally held regarding the Connellsville market.

"In the meantime, the pig iron market has developed bright spots alternately in the east, at Chicago and down south. The market in the east apparently has subsided after the recent heavy buying of basic grades. The heavy purchases of lower grades of southern iron than No. 2 foundry by various concerns, including large cast iron pipe makers, seem to have settled the market at $10.25, Birmingham, for No. 2. Further than disposing of some good tonnages of lower grades of iron, it is difficult to see just what further immediate effect this heavy buying has had upon the southern market. The total tonnage is scarcely large enough to form a back-log while the prices obtained scarcely will be called encouraging. Indeed, the Cincinnati market required several days to adjust its view of price to the prices actually paid in these cast pipe transactions. Little price movement is noted in the northern districts, but Chicago seems to feel quite encouraged over some recent buying of various grades.

"The next month should develop some actual characteristics in the pig iron market and therefore in the coke and ore markets. It has been a long time since pig iron has swung around in the dull manner so apparent in the past two months."

While this state of the market is largely psychological, it is not lacking material support. It is estimated that the crop movement will be the greatest in the country's history, and that it will absorb all the idle cars and for the time being render the present large surplus a shortage. It is possible that it will give impetus to other lines of business, and we will hope that the steel and iron and coke branches will be numbered among the beneficiaries.

The insinuation in certain political circles that we hate prosperity has no foundation in fact. We do, however, arraign and condemn meddling incompetents masquerading as statesmen who have sacrificed prosperity on the altar of political hopes, who have stuffed business with Doctor Bryan's theoretical nostrums until it is sick where once it was well.

The crops will do much toward saving the country, but nothing under the heavens will save the Democratic party.

THE WATER WAGON.

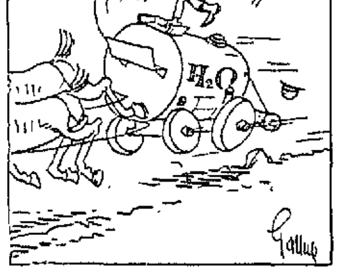
By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

The water wagon is a very popular vehicle, running principally between Poverty and Success. It does an enormous business, but has never yet come under the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission. This is because it has no rates, doing a free business. In spite of this fact, the joy car which is propelled by alcohol, and which charges an enormous price is a very formidable competitor, although there have been more wrecks on its system than on any other line running between the two destinations.

This is because the water wagon is very uncomfortable, and is not fitted with many conveniences for its passengers. Those who were born on the water wagon and who have never gotten off of it ride it with very little difficulty even on the roughest roads, but the casual passenger would have more success riding a peevish buffalo. The water wagon does not stop for passengers, but must be ascended while in full career without the aid of ladders, stairs, handholds, ropes or elevators, and riders must stick on its smooth, round back afterward without stirrups or life lines. The terminal station of this celebrated vehicle is magnificently fitted up, and the view from its windows is superb. But the journey itself is tedious, and the wagon frequently rolls in almost entirely empty. A few armchairs would improve the service immensely.

The water wagon runs at all times of the year, but on or about New Year's, the traffic is very great. In fact, for a few days it has an almost entire monopoly of travel. Most of the tourists, however, buy short distance, round trip tickets. They ride a few days and then return by falling off and rolling back. No one who has watched a powerful, red-faced man holding frantically onto the water wagon with both arms and shrieking for help, while beside him a slight woman is not only riding placidly but is keeping her children on with very little effort, can feel so brash thereafter about the superiority of man.



"The casual passenger would have more success riding a peevish buffalo."

The water wagon takes a northerly course to Success, and much of the scenery is bleak and uninteresting, consisting mainly of hard work and sand, with here and there a lemonade fountain. The fauna is also much less remarkable than that along the more southerly course. Pink alligators and pale green boa constrictors are never seen from the water wagon. Even the Heavens on this route are commonplace, there being but one moon and the usual number of stars.

BURNS, CUTS, BRUISES

San Cura Ointment Relieves Pain, Draws Out Poison and Heals Promptly.

There is no better remedy for burns, cuts and bruises than the antiseptic and healing ointment called San Cura.

Every person ought to have a jar on hand. It is the first and best aid to the injured in case of accident, and is the ideal remedy for so many other distressing and painful ailments besides.

For example, it is guaranteed by Graham & Company, Connellsville, and S. A. Lowe & Company, Scottdale, to relieve itching, bleeding and protruding piles, eczema, tetter, ulcers, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles and pimples, or money back.

In case of old running sores, no matter how long standing, a few poultices of San Cura Ointment will draw out the poison, and leave them in such a thoroughly aseptic condition that they will heal promptly.

We advise every reader to get a jar of San Cura Ointment today, and keep it ready for an accident or emergency that may happen. 25 cents and 50 cents at Graham & Company's, Connellsville, or S. A. Lowe & Company, Scottdale, on the money-back plan.

SOAP FOR THE SCALP.

San Cura Soap is delightful for shampooing, because it is full of antiseptic properties that banish the germs of dandruff and other impurities from the scalp. It removes pimples and blackheads, too. 25 cents a cake at Graham & Company's Connellsville, and S. A. Lowe & Company's, Scottdale.

If your druggist doesn't keep it send to the Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.—Adv.

FIRST USE OF RESINOL STOPS TERRIBLE ITCH

Jan. 27, 1914: "I suffered over eight years with eczema. It started in one little place and kept spreading until it covered my hands. My hands looked like they had been burned by fire and peeled off in large pieces until they were only raw flesh. I was told it was eczema. It itched and burned me so that I could not sleep at night. I tried all sorts of eczema salves and one prescription after another but nothing gave me any relief until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and after the first application my hands never itched or burned again, and were well in one week. I want every sufferer from eczema to know that they can find a cure in Resinol." (Signed) Miss Ethel Scott, Milstead, Ga.

Physicians have prescribed Resinol for nineteen years, for all sorts of skin troubles, pimples, dandruff, sores, ulcers, burns, etc. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap.

CHILDREN'S DAY

Will be Celebrated at Scottdale and Everson Churches Tomorrow.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, June 13.—Children's Day will be observed at the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School with a beginners' program at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. There will be songs and recitations by the beginners and primary departments. "The Cradle Roll and Baby's Soul," recitation by Charity Jane Colborn. This will be followed by the baptism of infants by the pastor, Rev. H. S. Piper, assisted by Miss Malinda Stoner, head of the Cradle Roll Department. "The Prayer For Baby," by Miss Grace Lockard, teacher of the beginners, will follow. The Sunday School meets as usual, prior to beginners service.

In the evening there will be a special service in charge of Dr. J. P. Strickler, superintendent of the Sunday School, the subject being "The Young Man Timothy and His Bible." The subject will be divided into sections—"Timothy," by Ralph C. Walker, "Forget Me Nots of His Bible," by a primary class, "The Boys of the Bible," by William Budd, "Men of the Bible," J. W. Wiley, Jr., "Women of the Bible," by Miss Nina E. McFarland. There will also be the reception of junior probations, and a large chorus of children and young people from the primary and junior schools.

The Everson United Brethren Sunday School will render their Children's Day program at 7.30 Sunday evening. The Sunday School has selected the program, "God's Beautiful Flowers," for the evening.

THE SOISSON.

MARY PICKFORD TODAY.

What Manager Fred Robbins considers the best picture drama of the season will be presented at the Soisson Theatre today. It is the charming little actress, Mary Pickford in the four reel drama, "Tess of the Storm Country." You will miss a good one if you miss that. Another three reel drama, that will be hard to beat is "The Link in the Chain" with Barbara Tenant and O. A. C. Lund. The comedy is very clever, "Willie Walrus and the Baby." The bill today is fine as silk. Patrons are requested to come as early as possible. "Lucille Love" comes next Friday night. Mr. Jas. K. Hackett in "Prisoner of Zenda," will be here Wednesday, June 17.

Blows in Furnace.

MRS. LYON'S ACHES AND PAINS

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Torre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Torre Hill, Pa.

It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health—many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

SMITHFIELD.

SMITHFIELD, June 13.—We are in receipt of the second number of the Farview Echo, published by and for the patients at the State Hospital for the Insane at Farview, Wayne county. B. Frank Smith is editor in chief. The little paper has no politics, as indicated by the following editorial:

"The patients of Farview Hospital while interested in occurrences of the outside world, are at least for the time being no factor in public political matters; so The Echo will positively take no part in politics. It might interest Echo readers to know that its editor held he small office of judge of election in his home precinct in the western part of the state for 17 years, being elected thereto each year by the Democratic party. On one occasion we received unsolicited the endorsment of the Republican party and our humbl services at the election must have been satisfactory to that body as we had a vote on that ticket the ensuing election as great as the Republican vote."

Several other articles in the issue over the editor's name display an uncommon aptitude for newspaper work and do not sound as the product of a diseased mind. The following is an extract from an article on the Hospital Home, as he calls it:

"So, my fellow inmates, as we continue here on the mountain top of Moosies let us stand also on the mountain top of hope, from whose summit alone we can view the promised land of future things to come. Let us be firm in the belief that justice will do the right thing when the proper time is here and that the men under whose care we are placed be of the discernment to gauge us correctly, and if we be of the essential 'compus mentus' ability, we will again in the future enjoy that liberty guaranteed by the National Constitution to all its subjects" to gauge us correctly, and if we be of the essential 'compus mentus' ability, we will again in the future enjoy that liberty guarantd by the National Consitution to all its subjecs."

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"

ILLUSTRATIONS by ELLSWORTH YOUNG

COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

"Her's was an unusual case," said Merry. "She is only fifty-three now, so I've heard. It makes you realize into what a short bit of our lives fame is crowded—if fame comes to us. The has-beens in our profession are an army, a pitiful army. Unless one has a home and some one in it to cherish and love, the lonely days of old age are—" Andrew laughed cheerlessly. "Well, I never think of them."

He stretched out his hand to intercept a boy who wandered between the tables with a tray full of crimson roses. He laid a bunch of them before Dorcas. She buried her face in the cool petals.

"Shall we go?" asked Merry.

As they pushed their way through the maze of crowded tables they passed a woman who sat dining alone. She wore an orange velvet gown, and a shabby lace scarf covered her naked shoulders. Dorcas paused for a moment, laid her hand upon the woman's arm, and spoke a few words in Italian. The singer looked up and put a grimy, ring bedizened hand upon the girl's fingers. Merry stood watching them. The woman looked very old and faded under the white glare of the electricity, but her face grew eager and tremulous while she poured out her soul in her own language. Dorcas took one rose from the cluster in her arms and laid the rest of the fragrant blossoms beside the singer's plate.

"You'll forgive me for parting with your flowers?" she whispered as she rejoined Merry.

"I'm glad you did it. Once upon a time stage bouquets were a worn-out sensation for that woman; today I guess she is showered with roses about once in a blue moon."

Dorcas paused near the door to nod good-by to the singer, who sat gazing after them with her chin buried in the red roses. Suddenly Dorcas turned to Merry. Her face had grown white, and she put her arm within his. He clasped it with a strong grip, but neither of them spoke. At the same moment they had caught sight of Enoch Wentworth. He was seated in an alcove at a small table hedged about with palms. Zilla Paget sat facing him. Enoch's hands clasped one of hers which lay upon the table. They were engrossed in each other.

Her Face Grew Eager and Tremulous.

Dorcas stopped abruptly when they reached the foot of the steps. "Oh, I" she whispered appealingly, "Andrew, save Enoch from that woman!"

CHAPTER XIII.

A Sealed Bargain.

Wentworth sat in a small room at the theater, which he had appropriated as his own. It led directly off the box office. He was glancing over a heap of press clippings when the door opened and Merry walked in.

"Good morning." There was a surprised glance on Enoch's face while he spoke.

Andrew nodded a response, then he drew a package of manuscript from his pocket. Wentworth's eyes turned on him curiously while he flattened it out on the table before him. No unnecessary courtesies passed between them.

"I rewrote the scene as you suggested," said Andrew carelessly.

"That was good of you." In his surprise Wentworth showed an impulsive friendliness. He stretched out his hand for the manuscript.

There was no cordiality in Merry's face. He glanced quietly through the written sheets.

"You count this change in the play a necessity?" he asked brusquely.

"I guess that's what it might be called." Wentworth's voice was impatient, and a frown chased across his face. "Oswald's been asking for it this morning. When a quiet fellow like him makes up his mind to have a thing, he's apt to be confoundedly insistent."

"Then you want it?"

"Certainly."

"I sat up until daylight to write this. It's an improvement on the other act; I can see that myself. Oswald will tell you, I think, that it carries out his ideas exactly. Before I hand it over I want to make a dicker with you."

Wentworth stared at him blankly. "A dicker?" he repeated. "Is it money?"

"Money!" Andrew's face grew harsh with scorn.

"What is it then?"

"I was dining last night at Colgazzi's. I—"

Wentworth's face grew suddenly scarlet, than it whitened.

"I saw you there." Merry's voice was relentless. "I don't know a blessed thing about the Paget woman, for or against her. I do know this, though: every man who has lived among good women knows she is not fit company for—your sister for instance."

"Who said she was?" snarled Wentworth. "I had not thought of throwing her into my sister's society. Dorcas would not have to tolerate even a passing acquaintance with her behind the scenes if I had my way."

"She is not fit to be seen with a decent man."

"You give me the credit then of being—a decent man?" sneered Enoch.

"To a certain limit—I do."

"Well, what do you want?" Wentworth turned an apprehensive glance upon him.

"I want you to promise, before I turn over this manuscript, that you will have nothing to do with Zilla Paget except in a business way."

"Why, are you interested in her yourself?"

"My God, Enoch!" Andrew stuffed the roll of paper in his pocket and jumped to his feet.

"Here, sit down. I want this affair straightened out—now."

Merry did not answer. He walked across the office and stood beside a table where a litter of photographs lay. He picked one up carelessly and glanced at it. It was an exquisite portrait of Dorcas. Her eyes gazed into his with a straightforward look which was characteristic of the girl.

"Will you tell me," there was stern demand in Wentworth's voice, "will you explain why you are so concerned about my morals?"

"I don't care a damn about your morals," answered Merry contemptuously. "I was thinking about your sister. I am still fool enough to believe that you have some decency left. I will hand over this act, rewritten as you want it, when you promise to have nothing to do with Zilla Paget."

A visiting card lay on the table. Wentworth picked it up and tore it into halves. He sat tearing and retearing it in perfect silence. When it was reduced to fragments, he gathered them into the hollow of his hand and dropped them in the waste basket; then he looked across at Merry.

"That was Miss Paget's card," he said harshly. "I'm through with her."

Merry took the manuscript from his pocket, laid it on the table before Enoch, and walked out.

A few minutes later Enoch opened the door which led into the box office. A young man sat beside the window.

"Dingley," he said, "I have locked the outside door. Don't let a soul in on me. I can't see Mr Oswald even. Tell him I am busy, writing."

Wentworth locked the door of the office, sat down in his big chair, and picked up the manuscript. He read it rapidly, slipped a blank sheet of paper into a typewriter, and began to copy it with slow deliberation. When it was finished he read each typed page carefully. He tacked them together and rose to his feet. He began to search the office rapidly with his eyes, then he turned to a wash-bowl in the corner. He crushed into a loose bunch each of the sheets which held Merry's writing and touched the paper with a match. It leaped into a red blaze. He watched it carefully, poking the sheets over with a paper knife until each one fell away into a shivering back ash. When every spark had died he turned on a faucet, and the light ashes were swept down the waste pipe. He rubbed a speck of grime from his hands and opened the box office door. Oswald sat on a high stool beside the window.

"Here is the second act," said Wentworth brusquely. "I imagine it will suit you. The changes are exactly what you suggested."

"Oh, splendid!" Oswald's voice was cordial. "I'm ever so glad you felt like it. You will say yourself it is an improvement."

"I hope so." Enoch spoke listlessly. "And, Dingley, while I think of it, send a message back to Miss Paget. Ask if I can see her now, in her dressing-room for a few minutes." He turned to Oswald. "I must explain to her the change we're making. Better have the part copied at once; it must be put into quick rehearsal."

CHAPTER XIV.

The Opening Night.

Dorcas stood motionless in the wings, with Merry beside her, leaning against a table. The curtain had fallen on the third act of "The House of Esterbrook." The girl's body throbbed from head to foot, and she felt as if the emotions of a lifetime had been crowded into that single hour. There was a babel of noise behind the scenes; in front the applause sounded like a tempest. At intervals the hand-claps died away as from weariness, only to begin again with tremendous vigor.

"I Don't Care a Damn About Your Morals!"

"Come," said Merry; "we must go out again."

"Again?" whispered the girl.

"Yes," Merry smiled; "this time the two of us alone."

"The two of us?"

"The two of us—alone." There was a low, tender thrill in Merry's voice.

He took her hand and led her out upon the empty stage. The curtain was lifting slowly. From where she stood she saw Enoch standing in the wings. His face was flushed with excitement. The audience looked to the girl like a blur of color and human forms. The people swayed forward eagerly, and the applause became uproarious. A voice cried, "Speech, Speech!" It began to come insistently from the back of the house. The cry was taken up by men and women everywhere in the audience. Dorcas turned to Merry. Oswald was beckoning to him from the wings, but the actor shook his head.

"I could not make a speech tonight if my life depended on it," he whispered, and the curtain descended slowly.

A new cry came from the clamorous house. Some one was shouting for the author. Dorcas laid her hand upon Merry's arm.

"They want you," she cried.

He smiled and shook his head.

She heard Oswald urge Enoch to go in front of the curtain. The noise in front grew louder. The girl flew across the stage and put her hand upon her brother's shoulder.

"Enoch," she pleaded in a whisper, "take Merry with you and explain."

Wentworth left her without a word. Oswald and the stage manager beckoned to him from the wings. She took a few flying steps as if to hold him back, then stopped. Merry had called her. She paused, staring into his eyes with terror.

"Enoch must not go out there alone," she protested in a low voice. "He must not do it. You should be with him. It is the last chance he has to make restitution. He will never, never do such a thing as this!"

"Listen," she heard Merry's whisper clearly through the din. "Dear, it does not matter. What does anything matter? The play is a success. You believe in me. I did it—for you. What do I care about the people out there? They are nothing to us."

"Oh!" cried Dorcas, "oh, I will go and tell them myself. They must know!"

She darted toward the edge of the drop curtain, then she stopped. A silence had fallen, not only upon the house but behind the scenes. Stage hands who had been dragging properties about stood motionless. A shiver crept over the girl. She felt Merry lay his hand on hers with a steadying clasp that seemed to quiet her. She could hear Enoch speaking. He had a strong, vibrant voice. Every one behind the scenes was listening and understanding except herself. His voice grew blurred as faces in the audience had been. She turned to glance at Merry. Once a look of consuming hatred flitted across his face, and his lips grew pallid as gray ashes.

Dorcas pulled away from his clasping hand and ran to her dressing-room. She was choking with sobs. She felt her fingers tingle where Andrew had touched them, and there was a look of terror in her eyes.

Alice Volk sat waiting for her in the dressing-room. Little Julie jumped to her feet when Dorcas entered. The girl did not speak, but clasped the child to her bosom.

"Alice," she whispered, "help me to dress as soon as you can. And Julie, ask Dugald to get a carriage. I want to go home."

The woman kissed the girl's neck as she unbuttoned her gown. "It has been an awful strain. I know all about it—but Miss Dorcas, your future is made."

The child returned in a minute. "Mr. Wentworth has a carriage ordered. Dugald says will you go with him?"

"No," cried Dorcas; "tell Dugald I'll be ready in ten minutes. I am going home alone."

Merry stood waiting at the stage entrance when she went out. He had heard Julie deliver the message. "Good night, Miss Dorcas," he said. "Sleep well. Remember, everything is all right. I owe it to you, I owe you more than you understand. You made good tonight; the papers will tell you so in the morning. Good night. God bless you!"

"Good night." The girl shivered for a moment. It was intensely cold, and she drew a fur coat close to her chin. The cabman drove quickly, for the streets were emptied of vehicles. Along Broadway the theaters were dark.

Jason stood waiting to open the door when the girl ran up the steps. His dusky old face was one grin of delight. He had just returned from the theater and was growing impatient for the triumph of a homecoming.

"Missy," he cried, "yo' cert'ly done us proud. My soul! I couldn't er b'lieved de baby I toted yeahs en yeahs aga ud ebber a' lived to act ez fine es yo' done. I used to play I was yo' black mule. I reckon yi' don' 'member, honey, ridin' mule on ol' Uncle Jason's back, do yo'? En dar yo' was, honey, a-workin' me up till I 'clar to goodness I mos' cried my ol' eyes out. When Marse Enoch come out en made dat speech folkses hollered en got to der feet clappin' en bangin' sticks on de floor, I 'clar to de Lawd dar wa'n't a prouder ol' darky in New York den Uncle Jason."

Dorcas began to laugh and cry at once.

"I don' wonder yo's all done up, Missy. I's got de fines' supper ready fo' yo' yo' ebber see."

Dorcas was too unnerved to eat. She swallowed a cup of coffee and nibbled at the good things Jason had prepared. Then she went upstairs and began to undress. She brushed her hair, plaited it in two long braids, and slipped into a gray kimono, which folded itself about her in sheeny waves. The coffee had driven sleep away. She tossed a shawl about her shoulders and ran down through the silent house to the library. Wentworth often read there until long after midnight, and a coal fire was burning brightly.

She pushed an armchair close to the hearth and dropped into it wearily. She realized that she was very tired. She had not thought of nerves or body during the long weeks of rehearsal, with the incessant study, the multitude of detail, and the strange irregularity of life.

She began to live over again the last few hours and drew a long breath as she remembered the strangling terror which laid hold of her before she made her first entrance. When she heard her cue she felt dumb, crippled, almost blinded for one moment. The smile on Zilla Paget's face, as she stepped from the wings, stung her into action. There was scorn in it, and cruelty smoothed over by a sweet, beguiling perfidy, which aroused in the girl a sudden hate that she had never felt in her life before. The hatred made her forget everything except her part.

The recollection of a bit of gossip had flashed to her memory: Zilla Paget had prophesied that her "Cordelia" would be a dead failure. Before the end of that second act the intense loathing and scorn which Merry had put into her lines became real. The woman understood. She shrank with a terror which was scarcely simulated during the girl's denunciation of a mother who had lost all claim upon a child for love or respect. Seven times the curtain rose and fell upon the two women. Once a volley of hisses was hurled at Zilla Paget, and she smiled in happy triumph. Oswald and Merry stood in the wings watching the act. The intensity which Dorcas threw into her part stirred both men strongly as it did the audience. They had anticipated womanly sweetness and tenderness, but they had not gauged her emotion to the depths.

"I never dreamed she could do anything like this," said Oswald slowly.

Merry did not speak. He had caught Zilla Paget's subtle smile. He knew there was more than acting in the scene.
